Wages are being reduced east of th mountains. A public meeting was held at Spokane Falls last week to compel or contractors to "raise" laborers wages from $1.50 to $2 a day. We, in Astoria. have no knowledge of what 'hard times" are. Don't send your money away. Spend i at home and stave off that scarcity which is usually associated with what is styled "hard times." Our merchants have large and well-selected stocks, and purely as a matter of business it is the best plan to buy from them in preference to sending the money out of the country.

The editor of the Harrington Times at tas "fly" this week as he was last but he knows a heap more. Some one sent him a poem, which he delightedly published, and not till it appeared in type did he discover that it was an ic, the lines reading "The editor of the Harrington Times is an ass." The editor of the Philadelphia Herald writes offering us a pack of cards by which one can play political euchre. That Philadelphia man is away off if he thinks that "political euchre" can be played with a pack of cards. The game is an interesting one—to lookers-en—but ary pack.

There is very little betting on the ele tion in this city. One resident says he has three hats, two suits of clothes, and $100 in money bet—in Portland. The clothes are bet on the Ohio election, the clothes are bet on the Onio election, the hats on New York and the money on the general result. The only bets that we heard of yesterday were two that Ike Bergman made; one with Dr. La Force. of $100, that Blaine's majority in Ohio wouldn't reach 29,000, and one of $10 with Sam Arndt that it wouldn't be 18,-000. The money is in Sovey's safe, and will remain there till the 6th of Novem-ber. They are both good bets—to lose.

One of the Three American-built Iron Ships

On a sunny afternoon last January, the first iron full-rigged ship ever built in the United States arrived at Astoria on her pioneer voyage from Chester, Pennsylvania, where she was built. She was loaded with over 3,500 tons of railroad material, and after discharging took a cargo of wheat to Liverpool, reaching that port in good time. During her stay in the river she attracted considerable attention and was fully written up in Tue ASTORIAN of January 11.

The second iron ship was the T. F. Oaker, now lying at San Francisco. The third iron ship, like the first two, built on the Delaware, was reported outside yesterday afternoon and will cross in today. She is the Clarence S. Bement, 1897 tons register, Townsend master, 154 days from Philadelphia.

From the figure-head to the stern, the C. E. Bement is 284 feet. The hull is 264% feet in length, 42.2 feet breadth and 23.4 feet depth of hold. The weight of the ship, exclusive of cargo and supplies is 1,450 tons. Add 2,500 tons cargo, and one gets an idea of the superficial feet of water covered by the ship. Her gross tonnage, government messurement, is 1,997 tons. An allowance of 5 per cent is made for crew's space, which reduce is made for crew's space, which reduces the net tonnage to 1,897 tons. The English law allows all tonnage for crew's space to be deducted for all purposes, but the American law allows only 5 per cent to be deducted. The area of canvas carried is 26,000 square feet. The height from the spar deck to main truck or the gilt ball on the top of the mainmast is 174 feet. The mainmast is 96 feet and the main yard 94 feet. All the lower masts and yards are of iron. The mails all consists of 1,128 yards. From the top of the mainrail to the keel is 30% feet. She is in every respect a counterpart of the T. F. Oakes.

F. Oaken.

It was not until the spring of 1882 that an iron sailing ship of any size was built in this country. It fell to the honor of W. H. Starbuck to give the order for the first ship of American iron, and to the credit of John Roach, the veteran ship builder to except that order. Mr. Starbuilder, to execute that order. Mr. Star-buck belongs to a family that has long been interested in ship-building, and his been interested in ship-building, and his house flag has for many years waved from the peak of vessels on the high seas. It was only a few years ago that this gentleman renewed his interest in ship building. His first vessel was the W. H. Starbuck, r. wooden ship of 1,300 tons, and finely finished, now lying here to load salmon, wool, etc., for New York. This was followed by the construction of the Henry Villard, a 1,600 ton ship, fully equal to the first. Mr. Starbuck subsequently bought two other wooden ships, namely, the Astoria and Mt. Washington, both new vessels at the time of purchase, the former being 1,400 tons and the latter 1,300 tons. After these acquisitions he gave his order to Mr. Roach for an iron ship, the result of which was the Tillie E. Starbuck, 1,900 tons, previously mentioned. viously mentioned.

About two years ago the Messrs. Roach About two years ago the Messrs. Roach and Cramps encountered a new rival in ship-building in the formation of the American Ship-building company. The leading spirit in this new enterprise was Lieut. Gorringe, formerly of the United States navy. This gentleman became thoroughly imbued with the idea that iron ship-building could be made a success in this country, and he impressed this idea so thoroughly upon others as to lead to the formation of the above organ nation. Mr. Gorringe proposed to test the matter right in the midst of veterans in the business of ship-building on the in the business of ship-building on the Delaware. He accordingly secured a fine site of 37 acres at Port Richmond, near Philadelphia, and set about the work of preparing for extensive operations. The yard is one of the largest in the country, and is thoroughly equipped with all that capital and ingenuity could suggest. The interprise caused considerable comment in the eastern press, some predicting a new era in the material for ship-building in this country, and others, of course, expressing strong doubts.

of encouraging this new enter prise Mr. Starbuck gave Lieut. Gorringe his first order for an iron ship. The kee of this vessel was laid on the 2d of May, sember she was launched, amid much en thusiasm, under the name of the T. F. Oukes, in konor of the vice-president of the Northern Pacific Railroad. The second order for an iron ship at the new yard was given by a Philadelphia capital-ist, and when the T. F. Oakes was finished.

st, and when the T. F. Oakes was finished. Lieut. Gorringe not only had this second order for the ship now off the Columbia oar, but also orders for two iron schoonsrs, one of 1,100 and the other of 600 tons, a steam collier of 1,200 tons, a freight and passenger steamer of 400 tons and berth room for 40 passengers, and four tugs of 75 to 100 tons each. All the vessels were completed and launched except one, when the company was obliged to suspend work.

Astoria has been visited by one other iron ship of American ownership, but not of American construction This was the Annie Johnson, formerly the British bark Ada Iredale. Under that name this vessel took fire while on her way to San Francisco, and was abandoned at sea. The hull floated about in mid-ocean for several months, and was finally picked up and towed into Tahiti, where she was purchased by A. Crawford & Co. She was subsequently rigged and put in thorough order, and has ever since done good service under the American flag good service under the American flag and under the name of Annie Johnson.

Big Land Deal.

E. M. Reed, writing to the Walla Walla Journal, September 25th, says: "In a conversation to-day with a gentlemen in timately identified with the Northern Pacific land department, Portland office Pacific land department, Portland office, he said that the papers were now drawn up for the transfer of the Ritzville property, embracing some 30,000 acres, to Philip Ritz & Co. This property is the same that was promised Mr. Ritz for his trip to Washington and his endeavors in behalf of the Northern Pacific company. The settlement now to be effected is on the basis of $2.60 per acre, and payments extending over a period of ten years. My informant stated that the Portland office sold over $2.000,000 worth of land last sold over $2,000,000 worth of land last year, the greatest sales being in May, and amounting to $375,000. This is evidently one of the causes of the present stringency in the money market."

His head-quarters will be at Olympia, W. T. Toraro, Ohio, Sept. 22, '84.

ASTORIAN: I would respectfully call your attention to the enclosed General Order, and ask you to give it place in your columns, in view of the excited condition of the times growing out of the political canvass, and the disposition in some quarters to associate the Grand Army with politics. Yours very truly,

W. W. ALCOHN. Adjutant-General. HEADQUARTERS GRAND ARMY OF THE

REPUBLIC,
TOLEDO, Ohio, September 13, 1884.

[General Orders No. 4.]
The country at this time is being agitated by a great political contest; and while it must be conceded by all that no class of citizens have a higher right to freely express their political opinions and take part in the campsign as their convictions shall dictate, than those who through unselfish patriotism went forth to save the north, yet the commander-inchief deems it his duty to remind compared the save the strictly non-partisan. Our law, upon the subject is plain and emphatic, as follows:

"No officer or comrade of the Grand "No officer or comrade of the Grand of the Recording of the Reco

Art. XI, R. and R.

It is therefore earnestly hoped that no Post will violate this fundamental law of our association by participating in any political demonstration whatever.

The wearing of a Grand Army badge or uniform at a political meeting is in the highest degree improper, and comrades should refrain from so offending against the scarit of our rules and regulations.

NO GOING BEHIND THE RETURNS.

One of the funniest stories we have heard in reference to the present campaign comes from San Francisco. It seems that at a church fair given in that godly city, the girls thought that it would be just splendid to have votes (ten cents each) for the presidential candidate. "You see," says the informant, "we thought that we'd let them vote for Blaine or Cleveland and pay ten cents for each vote. One of us girls kept the tally of the votes on the blackboard with a piece of chalk. Well, Cleveland was ahead almost all the while."

to rally, and they would be beat. One woman in black came to see that Cleve-land should win. After the tall girl voted all her money the woman in black voted enough to elect Cleveland and gave her note for $30 for it. But it was found that note for $50 for it. But it was found that a mistake of 100 votes had been made in counting up Blaine's ballots. When the returns were corrected Blaine had 100 more than appeared on the blackboard, and that elected him."

more than app-ared on the blackboard, and that elected him."
"I'd voted 100 more for Cleveland if I had known of that mistake," said the lady in black, her eyes flashing indignantly, "but they would not open the polls."
"is the lady in black a member of the church?" asked the reporter.
"Oh, dear, no. The Democrats sent her here."

"I have the money for the Blaine votes," said the tall girl, showing a cupful of coin. "All the other side has got for three hundred of its votes is a piece of paper."
"The lady in black is good as gold for

"The lady in black is good as gold for it," said a lovely brunette, with a gentle reproof in her tones.

The commission that was appointed to settle the matter finally decided that the lady in black should have her note for $30 returned and that 300 votes for Cleveland
